

TO ASCERTAIN
CAUSE OF FIRE

Committee Appointed to Determine
Origin of $40,000 School House
Blaze in Milroy.

SCHOOL AUTHORITIES ACT

Moved Based on Reports That Persons Have Been Seen in Building at Night.

Believing that the fire which destroyed the modern school house at Milroy Friday morning at a loss of forty thousand dollars was either accidental or of incendiary origin, it was reported in Milroy this afternoon that the Anderson township advisory board had appointed a committee to ascertain the cause.

The investigation has been determined on after reports had reached the authorities that people living near the school house had seen persons moving about in the school house at night on many occasions,
and that light had been lighted.

Another which caused the investigation, it is said, is the fact that it has been learned by the school officials that certain high school boys possess keys to the laboratory where the fire is supposed to have started, and that they could gain access to the building.

It is understood that persons who were in the laboratory the last night before the fire declare that they turned out all fires and that they can not understand how the blaze started.

It is said to be the opinion of the investigators that some one may have gained entrance to the building and left a light which caused the fire or that it was set on fire because of the opposition to the building being erected on that site. The later theory is not given much credence.

FAIR MAY BE WEEK
LATER THIS YEAR

Secretary W. L. King Goes to Muncie
Today to Attend the Eastern Indiana Association.

ANOTHER MEETING NEXT WEEK

W. L. King, secretary of the Rush County Fair Association, went to Muncie today to attend the annual meeting of the Eastern Indiana Fair Association. A week from tomorrow he will go to North Vernon to attend
the Southeastern Indiana Fair Association session. Rush county is in both circuits and attracts race horses and concessions from each of them.
Before leaving for Muncie Mr. King said that he expected the county fair would be a week later this year, because at a meeting of the board of the State Agricultural Association
last week the State fair was set a week later than usual. The county fairs are all held the same weeks each year. As the State fair will be a week later it was thought the county fairs would be dated a week back so as to bring the circuit to a close the week before the State fair. Mr.
King did not think anything of much importance would come before the meeting today.

Dalton R. Powell has filed suit against Laura M. Powell for the specific performance of a contract.

The Rev. and Mrs. Omer Hufferd are residents of Rushville temporarily.

HOSPITALITY IS A SETTLED FACT

L. G. Vannice, Once Skeptical About Renowned Southern Sociality is Convinced After Trip.

ARRANGES FOR JERSEY SALE

Jersey Isle Stock Farm Will Ship 70
Head for Auction at Montgomery, Ala., Next Month.

L. G. Vannice, of the Jersey Isle
Stock Farm, west of the city, knows there is such a thing as southern hospitality. At one time he was skeptical, but now he's convinced. He just returned from a trip to the gulf.

Mr. Vannice has been south arranging for a sale of registered Jerseys which the Jersey Isle Stock Farm will hold at Montgomery, the capital of Alabama, some time next month. He expected to have to pay for something, but it seems that the people whom he met there were decidedly opposed to any such practices—a stranger paying for something.

He went down to arrange for the sale, expecting to be charged a good sum for grounds on which to hold the auction. Instead the State Fair association offered free use of the State fair grounds, and the president of the State Live Stock association will try to arrange for the annual meeting with the Jersey auction. A show which is wintering in Montgomery, proffered the free use of their tent
and seats for the sale, and will furnish all the men the local breeders and importers may need.

About seventy head of Jerseys will be shipped from the local farm for the sale. Most of the Jerseys, which will be sold under the hammer are under two years of age.

There are only a few imported Jerseys or Jerseys from imported, registered stock in Alabama or surrounding States. A few wealthy men in that section have been coming north each year to buy a few for their own use, but they have never made any pretense of breeding the stock.

The interest in the breeding of imported Jerseys is increasing in the south, Mr. Vannice says. This is revealed by the fact that a southern buyer went through the fall Jersey sale circuit in Indiana and Illinois and bought two car loads, which he shipped south.

The men who are interested in imported Jerseys down there are unanimous in their approval of the local importers shipping Jerseys down there for an auction. They say in their letters that they will be delig-ted to avail themselves of the opportunity of attending the sale. Montgomery is so located that a sale there will attract from three to four States.

The president of the State veterinary college and the State Live Stock association is making an effort on his own initiative to cause the annual meeting and banquet to be held in connection with the auction. This would attract all the prominent breeders and buyers from all over the State.

Mr. Vannice was in a quandary when he arrived at Montgomery. He couldn't figure out just where the sale would be held. He soon found that the State fair grounds were his all free of charge.

A circus is wintering on the fair grounds. Mr. Vannice chanced to learn that two of the managers were of Hoosier parentage and birth. They wanted to show they still held a warm spot in their heart for Indiana.

TO FIX RATES TO WASHINGTON TODAY

Central Passenger Association Meets
at Chicago to Determine Fare to Inauguration.

EVERY DEMOCRAT WANTS TO GO

Local passenger agents await with interest the report from the meeting of the Central Passenger association at Chicago today, when it was expected that rates for inaugural business to Washington will be fixed.
While it is not known what rate the association would decide to make, it is believed a view of the action taken by the Southwestern and Eastern associations that a rate of a fare and a half for the round trip would be agreed on.

This rate will probably be for individual tickets, and for parties of twenty-five or more, it is expected that a cheaper rate will be made.

There is much rivalry among local passenger men for the inaugural business from Indianapolis and Indiana which is expected to be heavy, and especially if the prospects for fine weather are good. The railroad men figure that every Democrat who is able to raise the money, will wish to be in the parade on March 4.

WAS A NATIVE OF FAIRVIEW

Mrs. Maria L. Dickman, Age 72
Years, Died at Irvington Home Yesterday.

HAD BEEN SICK EIGHT WEEKS

Attended Old Fairview Academy and Later Lived in Connersville and Kokomo.

Mrs. Maria L. Dickman died yesterday at her home in Indianapolis after an illness of eight weeks. She was one of the best-known women of Irvington and had been a resident of Indianapolis since 1860.

Mrs. Dickman was born in Fairview, May 2, 1840, the daughter of Jacob and Mary Band. Her parents were active workers in the early days of the Christian denomination and she united with the church when she was thirteen. She attended the old normal school, known as the Fairview academy, under the teaching of Professor A. R. Benton.

In her early childhood the family moved to Connersville, and later to Kokomo, where she was a vocal student under Professor Berntringer.
During the civil war when many benefit concerts were given in Indianapolis for sick and wounded soldiers she gave her services gladly. In many other ways she helped the cause of the Union among women's organizations.

Shortly after coming to Indianapolis the family united with the old Christian chapel, where her membership remained until after Irvington became her permanent residence.

In 1869 she was married to Charles W. Dickman. Two children were born, Mary Helen, who died in 1894,
and A. Vietta, who survives.

Many are the prophets of our village and surrounding country that sit at the various stores around the fires on rainy days and give forth as their opinion what the next four years will bring to the people of the United States. Some don't seem to have any confidence in the Democratic party and its leaders. Some seem to have implicit faith in her actions. The most conservative are willing to wait and see.

EXTRACTS FROM THE STATUTES OF INDIANA

That each person or taxpayer charged with taxes on a duplicate in the hands of a County Treasurer may pay the full amount of such taxes on or before the first Monday in May, or may at his option, pay one-half thereof on or before the first Monday in May, and the remaining half on or before the first Monday in November, in the manner prescribed by law. All road taxes to be added to the first installment.
When first installment is not paid prior to the first Monday in May, the taxes for the whole year become delinquent.
The Treasurer will not be responsible for the penalty and charges on Delinquent Taxes resulting from any omission of the person paying to state definitely on what property, in whose name and in what township or corporation it was assessed.
Persons owing Delinquent Taxes should pay them at once. The late law is of such character that there is no option left the Treasurer but to enforce the collection of delinquent taxes, however much he may regret to collect the same, by sale of property.
The owner of the property on the first day of March in any year, shall be liable for the payment of all taxes of that year. The purchaser of property on the first day of March shall be considered as owner on that day.—Sec. 103.
All the property, both personal and real, situated in any county, shall be liable for the taxes, penalties, interests and costs to the owners thereof, in such county, and no partial payment of such taxes, penalties, interests or costs shall discharge or release any part or portion of such property until the whole be paid; which lien shall in no wise be affected or destroyed by any sale or transfer of any such personal property.—Sec. 644, R. S.

The Treasurer has no option in rebating the penalty on taxes allowed to go delinquent. Taxpayers are particularly notified that all Road Tax is due and payable with the first installment. NO COUNTY ORDERS WILL BE PAID TO PERSONS OWING DELINQUENT TAXES, AND ALL PARTIES ARE WARNED AGAINST BUYING THE SAME.

The Annual Sale of Delinquent Lands and Lots will take place on the Second Monday in February, 1913.

PARTICULAR ATTENTION

TAXPAYERS SHOULD EXAMINE THEIR RECEIPTS before leaving the Treasurer's office, and see that they are correct. Those who have lands or other property in more than one township, must see that they have a receipt for all.

The Connersville Independent basketball team cancelled the game here tonight with the Rushville team and the Indianapolis Business University team will be taken on in place of the Connersville team. The Connersville team developed a case of "cold feet" at the last minute. Their excuse was that two of the players were on the hospital list. The Indianapolis team will give the locals a stiff game as they have a fast team.

TO HAVE GOITER REMOVED

Mrs. Ed Noah of Clarksburg May Lose Voice as Result.

Mrs. Ed Noah of Clarksburg, accompanied by her husband and daughter, Mrs. Albert Clark, of Rushville, left Monday for Louisville, says the Greensburg Review. Mrs. Noah has been troubled for some time with an ingrowing goiter, which has reached such size that it interferes greatly with her breathing. She went to Louisville with the expectation of having an operation performed. This can be done successfully, but she will lose her voice, and for this reason has postponed the ordeal as long as possible.

OPENS WITH AN IMMENSE CROWD

Purdue University Short Course Enjoys Largest Enrollment of Its Career at Lafayette.

MANY ACTIVITIES DEPICTED

Corn Growers Hear How to Prepare Seeds, Sheep Breeders Meet and Women Have Ironing.

That Purdue University at Lafayette is the mecca this week for Indiana farmers and their families was indicated today by the rapidly increasing enrollment and the interest manifested by the great throng of visitors in attendance at the second day's sessions of the annual Farmers' Short Course. Indications were that all records for attendance would be broken.

There will be a still greater assemblage tomorrow when the Indiana Corn Growers' association meets in annual session and holds its yearly State corn show. The association has a full schedule and in the evening there will be an informal reception for the visitors, including the live stock breeders of the State who will hold sectional meetings prior to the reception, the Angus, Shorthorn and Hereford breeders' associations holding separate sessions.

One of the principal features of the second day's session of the Short Course was the annual meeting of the Indiana Sheep Breeders' and Feeders' association which occupied the entire day in the Live Stock Department. J. R. Nash of Tipton, president of the association, was scheduled to deliver the opening address and Dean John H. Skinner of the Purdue School of Agriculture, the response. Prof. H. E. Allen of Purdue addressed the sheep men on the subject of "Food and Clothing—Mutton and Wool," his talk dealing with various problems which confront the average sheep raiser.

The corn growers of Indiana, and that includes practically every farmer in the State, are deeply interested in the corn judging that is one of the important features of the Short Course program. The main object of this work is to determine the best seed corn. In the soils and crop section today the time was devoted to judging and at the close of the afternoon's schedule Prof. George I. Christie lectured on "The Selection and Preparation of Seed Corn," telling of the importance of knowing and choosing proper seed corn and also the necessity of properly preparing it for planting.

The second day's work in home economics began with a talk on "Textiles and Their Adulterations" by Prof. Mary L. Mathews. Textile fibers were discussed from the viewpoint of utility, durability and economy. Miss Mathews said that there were no pure textile laws to protect women from adulterations, so it is necessary that they be judges of textile materials themselves.

"In buying four points should be considered," said Miss Mathews:

"first, how is the article purchased to be used; second, how much money is to be spent; third, what should be expected for that amount of money; and fourth, is the purchased as represented." She said women should inform themselves in regard to adulterations and learn some of the tests which may be applied at home.

Work in the dairy department today consisted of dairy cattle judging, demonstration and practice in testing milk and cream, a lecture on "Breeding for Milk" and a talk on "Housing the Dairy Cow."

R. E. Caldwell gave much valuable information concerning the importance of selecting sires of fine quality in order to produce cows which will give the largest returns in milk production. He recommended the organization of breeding associations in localities where it is impossible for each farmer to secure a bull of acceptable breeding.

An ideal dairy barn, not from the viewpoint of a millionaire, but rather that of the average farmer, was described in detail by J. R. Carver. The first consideration, he said, was adaptability, i.e., the size of the farm, extent of the business and financial status of the owner; next he discussed sanitation, this including construction, provisions for cleaning; methods of feeding and manner of taking care of the milk.

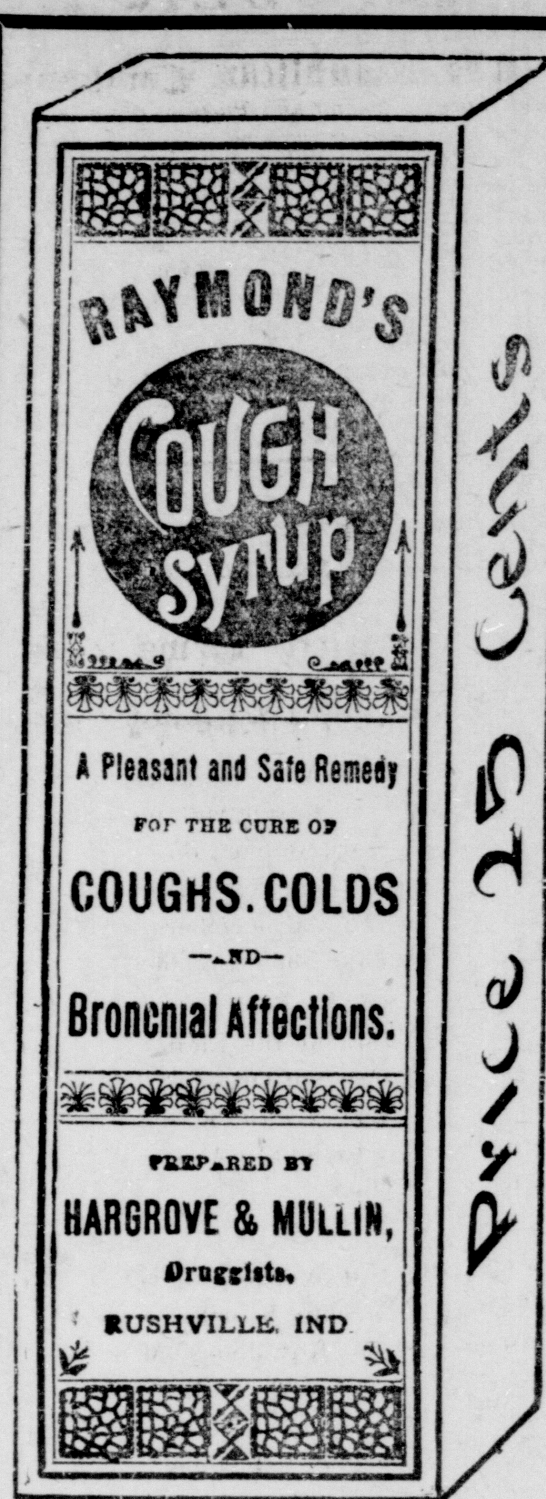

In the poultry department the time was devoted to lectures and to judging classes and breed characteristics. R. C. Lawry of Pacific, Mo., a graduate of Cornell university and a successful poultry expert, gave two lectures, one on "Breeding for Egg Production," and the other on "Housing Farm Poultry," the latter being illustrated.

As a practical illustration of what can be accomplished in apple growing in Indiana Prof. C. G. Woodbury of Purdue told the fruit growers of the State who are attending the Short Course what the horticultural department of the university has succeeded in doing in several fruit-growing counties of the State. It was most convincing argument in favor of growing, grading and packing fruit according to modern methods. Purdue university has maintained orchards in several fruit growing centers of the State and has secured an average profit of $100 an acre for each orchard.

"There are not the inflated profits of other sections but the kind which mean permanent prosperity to the individual and the commonwealth of Indiana," said Mr. Woodbury. The possibilities of success, he said, are as great in Indiana as in any other locality, not excepting the land of the golden west where tales of marvelous fortunes made in fruit raising are told. The cost of production is lower in Indiana and the transportation facilities and proximity to the eastern market are big advantages not to be overlooked. If Indiana apple growers would grow, grade and pack their fruit as well as their western competitors they could make $275 a ton more profit than the western growers.

It's Funny

How minds will differ. It would be absolutely impractical to pave the city with gold bricks, is the statement a friend of mine made to me and he gave this reason:

Hoboes from all over the country would come here and extract them as they needed them and it would keep our streets torn up almost all the time.

What method do you think could be devised to remedy this condition?

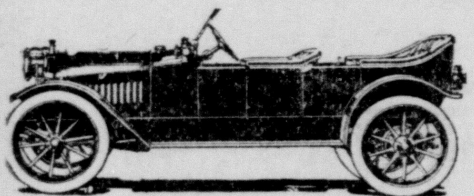

I am open for suggestions.

He Comes Up
Smiling

By Charles
Sherman

Batchelor had consented so readily the day before to come with them that now, when he had had time to think it over, he might have regretted his decision and be already on the way to the railroad, somewhere. His had been the master mind to conceive the check and ruin of the cotton scheme, and surely he would see the folly in what he had done the day before, when lured on by the pretty, bewitching Billy. He would realize now in the clear light of day that he must return to the city or get word to his brokers somehow. He might even then be in a telegraph office, sending a dispatch of far-reaching importance.

Bartlett dressed with feverish haste and hurried out to the side porch. The Watermelon was there, sitting in the sun, his feet hanging over the edge of the porch, talking carelessly with the immobile Alphonse. Both were smoking and both had apparently been up for some time. Had Batchelor been to the village and telegraphed already? He would have had time to go and return if he had used one of the cars.

The Watermelon looked up. "Hello," said he.

"Hello," said Bartlett. "Been up long?"

"Not so long," said the Watermelon. "Are the cars all right?" asked Bartlett.

"I haven't been to see," said the Watermelon, rolling another cigarette. Bartlett drew a sigh of relief and started after Alphonse for the shed beside the barn. The Watermelon had not had time to walk to the village and back, besides telegraphing. Bartlett paused and glanced over his shoulder.

"Aren't you coming?"

"No," said the Watermelon. "I ain't bugs about the gasoline buggies."

Bartlett walked on, shrewdly guessing that the languid youth was waiting for Billy. Her charms, it seemed, had not grown any less effective. He decided that he would not try to get in touch with his broker. He could trust him to take care of the city end of the business if Batchelor were to be eliminated until the following Sunday. Bartlett admitted to himself, as he gazed abstractedly at the shining cars, that the young man had not appeared visibly impressed either by himself or the general. But Batchelor was clever and would hide his elation. The Watermelon's slow crawl at last aroused him.

"Cut it," said the Watermelon. "The cops are coming."

One of New York's leading citizens, bank president and corporation director, felt a slow, cold, clammy chill creeping up his spinal column. His first instinctive desire, like that of the small boy caught robbing an apple orchard, was to hide. Last night was one of those unfortunate occurrences it were best to pass over in silence. He turned and glanced at the house. The place looked deserted in the morning sunshine. The blinds were drawn, the doors shut. The general and the girls apparently still slept, and no country variety of New York's "finest" with warrant and shotgun could be seen approaching. Alphonse looked up from the car and gazed a moment at the house with the scornful indifference for the law and its minions of the confirmed joy-riding.

"I do not see anyone," said Bartlett with calm dignity.

"They are creeping up on us," said the Watermelon cheerfully. "Trust the rube to do the thing up in style. Three men came along. They stopped down by the gate and talked, pointing up here, then one ran on to the village to get help, I suppose, and the other two are waiting down there."

"I will go and explain that it was a mistake," said Bartlett.

"Now, don't do that," adjured the Watermelon. It was just possible that the police had already picked up his trail and he preferred the chance of escaping in a car to stealing away by himself, through the woods, a tramp again, leaving behind him Billy and a week of fun. "Alphonse can bring up the cars and we can slip away before the reinforcements come. See?"

"I will explain that it was a mistake—"

"Mistakes," said the Watermelon coldly, "aren't on the cards in school and the law. Come up to the house and see the others first, anyway."

"One can afford mistakes as well as any other luxury," said Bartlett. "Money is all the fellows want."

"Let's talk it over first with the others, anyway," urged the Watermelon, feeling that it might be that money was not all they wanted.

They found the general and the girls in the kitchen putting it in order.

"Certainly," said the general with the calmness of one immune from the law. "We will explain."

"What?" asked Henrietta, as she drew shut the basket lid and slipped in the catch.

"Father used to say that if what you've done makes a fight, explanations will only make another," said the Watermelon. While he had the time he realized that he should slip away, but there was a chance that the police, finding their youthful quarry in the society of a general and a reputable and wealthy citizen of New York, could be impressed with the belief that they had made a mistake, and the Watermelon was always ready to take chances. Still, there was no need of running needless risk, and if he could persuade them all to escape with him in the cars, he would do it.

Henrietta nodded. Billy was for an instant flight. "We might as well," she explained lucidly, eying her father questioningly.

"Not at all," said Bartlett. "Money is all they want."

"An explanation," said the general, "will be sufficient. We do not want any tampering with the law." He picked up his hat and started for the door as he would sally forth and demand the surrender of a beaten foe.

"But, father," Henrietta's clear voice made him pause, "what can we explain?" She pushed back her auto veil and gazed from one to the other in gentle deprecation. "How we got in? But they wouldn't want us to explain that. You see, they can surmise that."

The general came back to the table. A little firmness, tempered with a lucid explanation in words of one syllable had always been his method in dealing with the weaker sex. "My dear Henrietta, we can explain why we are here."

"Why are we?" asked Henrietta meekly.

"Why are we?" demanded the general. "Because we took it for the house of a very old and dear friend."

"But as soon as we entered, father, we knew our mistake."

"Henrietta," said the general, "I cannot argue with you."

"Money," said Bartlett, "is all they want. They always fine all motorists for breaking speed laws. It becomes a sort of habit with them."

"This ain't breaking the speed laws," warned the Watermelon. "This is house-breaking."

"Sir," demanded the general, "do you accuse me, me, of house-breaking?"

"The whole damn family," said the Watermelon brusquely. "This is some

There Was a Heavy Step on the Porch Without.

different from speed-breaking," he added gloomily.

"This is preposterous!" cried the general. "That I, I, should be arrested! Why, I refuse to be. No one has a right to arrest me."

"If you break into another person's house, father—" began Henrietta.

"But, Henrietta, I am not a house-breaker. I deny the charge."

"We all are," said Henrietta. "That is all I can see to it."

"Money—" began Bartlett again, the refrain of his life. He felt he could not be arrested and haled before a magistrate, even such a humble one as a country justice of the peace. His whole scheme would be ruined. Batchelor would probably want to return to the city as soon as he could bail himself out, and not care to have anything more to do with motor trips run on similar lines.

"No," snapped the general, "we will have no graft."

"Graft," sputtered Bartlett. "Who suggested graft? A wise manipulation of the financial end of a difficulty will more often save you than not. There is no graft in paying for a night's lodging."

"Under the present circumstances, paying for a night's lodging is graft," declared the general.

"It's graft, then, or prison," snapped Bartlett.

"Prison," said the general heroically.

"Prison is foolish," said Billy, "when one has a motorcar and can get away."

"Besides," said Bartlett, "graft is not dishonest for the man who gives the bribe."

"It ain't," agreed the Watermelon. "If the man has money enough to give publicly to some college or institution."

Henrietta drew on her gloves. "I think you are all cynics," said she. "Graft is dishonest."

"Why?" asked Bartlett, turning to her. "Why, Henrietta?"

"Because," said Henrietta firmly.

"Father used to say that it would take the constitution of an ostrich, the empty head of a fool and the nerves of a prize-fighter to stand poverty."

said the Watermelon, thinking of those days when there were eight children and no money.

"I think," said Billy, as one propounding a wholly original suggestion, "that we should go at once."

"If we have done wrong," said the general, "we should suffer for it. We should not attempt to evade the consequences of our acts."

There was a heavy step on the porch without. The general turned pale, Bartlett reached for his pocket-book and Billy leaned weakly against the knobby end of the haircloth sofa. Only Henrietta and the Watermelon were quite calm, the latter with the calmness of desperation, the former, of despair.

JOHN B. STOLL

Will Carry Indiana's Electoral Vote to the National Capital.

STOLL TO CARRY THE
NEWS TO WASHINGTON

Wilson and Marshall Get Indiana's Electoral Vote.

Indianapolis, Jan. 14.—In the casting of the votes of Indiana's fifteen presidential electors for president and vice president there was unanimity yesterday, but this was not true regarding the selection of an official messenger to "carry the news to Washington." John B. Stoll was chosen as the messenger on the second ballot.

The candidates were Stoll, Elijah A. Gladden, Scottsburg, and F. W. McCoughtry of Attica, Gladden having five votes which stood with him on both ballots. E. S. Edger of Winchester, said to be the oldest man among the electors, suggested that the ages be taken, and that the eldest man be sent to Washington. His suggestion was not received with favor, however.

One copy of the official vote as cast will be carried to the president of the United States by Mr. Stoll, a second will be sent by mail, and the third to be delivered to Judge Anderson of the federal district court. The electors who cast their votes were: John B. Stoll, South Bend, and George W. Voight, Jeffersonville, electors-at-large; R. M. Gray, Ottwell, First district; John W. Cravens, Bloomington, Second district; E. H. Gladden, Scottsburg, Third district; George P. Shoemaker, Greensburg, Fourth district; M. C. Hammill, Terre Haute, Fifth district; William L. Newbold, Rushville, Sixth district; Joseph A. Rink, Indianapolis, Seventh district; Edward Shield Edger, Eighth district; F. W. McCoughtry, Attica, Ninth district; Michael Duffy, Fowler, Tenth district; Charles A. Edwards, Huntington, Eleventh district; Louis H. Kocher, Chubbuck, Twelfth district; Joseph J. Rumely, Laporte, Thirteenth district.

Washington, Jan. 14.—Dr. Charles W. It is understood to be to the effect that Mr. Rockefeller's state of health is such as to preclude his appearance before the committee or the making of a statement in the form of a deposition.

SENATE "BROKE"
JUDGE ARCHBALD

Head of Commerce Court Is Impeached.

HE HAD MISUSED HIS OFFICE

Accused in the House of Having Exercised Power of His Station For His Own Personal Gain, United States Jurist Is Sent Away From the High Bar of the Senate in Disgrace, "A Batter'd, Wreck'd Old Man."

Washington, Jan. 14.—On five of the thirteen charges against him by the house of representatives, Robert W. Archbald of Scranton, Pa., judge of the United States circuit court, detailed to service in the United States commerce court, was found guilty.

By a unanimous vote of the senate this judge, in his twenty-first year of service on the bench, was removed from office and by a vote of 39 to 35, was "forever disqualified from holding and enjoying any office of trust, honor and profit under the United States."

It was the first time since 1862 that the senate of the United States has impeached such an official. Then Judge W. H. Humphries of the United States district court of Tennessee was removed because he had gone over to the Confederate army. The only other case in which impeachment proceedings were sustained by the senate was in 1804, when John Pickering, judge of the United States district court for New Hampshire, was removed from office for conduct unbecoming a member of the bench.

The judge received the news of his sentence in an ante-room of the senate chamber. With him were his wife and members of his family. He seemed dazed at the result, but bore up under the disgrace, maintaining that the public was demanding a victim from the judiciary and that he had been sacrificed.

When Judge Archbald left the capitol he showed plainly evidences of keen mental suffering. He was driven to his home in this city and left today for Scranton, where he expects to spend the remaining days of his life among the people who knew him and who have stood loyally by him through the trial.

RECOGNIZED HIS FAILING

Former Premier Jockey of America Confesses He's Down and Out.

New York, Jan. 14.—Grover C. Fuller, once rated as the premier jockey of America and rich, pleaded guilty to petty larceny before Judge Rosalsky, in general sessions. Fuller, down and out, was a protégé of "Big Tim" Sullivan, upon whose spectacular career the curtain of fate is dropping.

"You were very wealthy one time, I understand," said the court, when Fuller came before the bar.

"Yes," replied Fuller, brokenly, "I was once worth $150,000. I lost it all through drink and bad associates."

The charge against Fuller was grand larceny, but he was permitted to plead to a minor charge. He was accused of taking a gold watch. In 1903 Fuller won the Futurity on Hamburg Belle and also the Suburban and five other big races. "Big Tim" ran across Fuller when the jockey was riding at a small track in the west. He recognized his talent and brought him east, where in a single season he became famous.

Had Been Lost For Centuries.

Rome, Jan. 14.—The lost painting "Virgin and Child," by the Italian painter Gentile da Fabriano, has been discovered in a small church in the town of Velletri, twenty-one miles from Rome, where it was taken in the middle of the sixteenth century by Cardinal Ginnasi, the bishop of Velletri, who removed the painting from the church of SS. Cosmas and Damianus here. Since that time the painting has not been identified.

COMMITTEES TO HAVE MORE TIME

Legislative Sessions to Be Brief for Fortnight.

THEN THE GRIND WILL BEGIN

In Order That Plenty of Time May Be Had by Various Committees, Only One Session of Indiana Legislature Will Be Held Each Day For the Next Two Weeks, Spare Time to Be Given to Examination of Bills.

Indianapolis, Jan. 14.—During the first two weeks of the assembly only one session of the legislature will be held daily, the regular meeting hour being at 10 o'clock each morning. The time thus spared to the committees, who in a day or two will have their hands full of bills, is expected to be used to the best advantage, so that when the legislators begin full time sessions the routine will be interrupted as little as possible.

Following the inaugural ceremonies yesterday the two houses convened briefly and then were adjourned until 10 o'clock this morning. The flood of bills began in earnest today, nearly every member having some measure of more or less importance to cast into the hopper. These were expeditiously referred to the committees under whose head they came. Many, of course, never will be heard of again. Others perhaps will get no further than a first reading, while those possessing merit will be reported out and put on their way in due time.

One proposed measure that is attracting considerable attention is a bill prepared by Representative George W. Sands of St. Joseph county to regulate the traffic in habit forming drugs. South Bend in the last few months has produced some of the most deplorable cases of depravity from the use of drugs that have been heard of in the state in many a day, and the people of that city, as well as over the state generally have raised a great demand for more stringent legislation on the subject.

Mr. Sands's bill is made to apply to morphine, opium, cocaine, alpha eucaine, beta eucaine, heroin, cannabis indica, chloral hydrate, or any of their salts or derivatives. The bill is in the form of an amendment to the present state law pertaining to the sale of drugs, and applies to all preparations and remedies containing more than two grains of opium or one-fourth of a grain of heroin or one grain of cocaine or their salts or derivatives to each fluid ounce or avoirdupois ounce. Penalties for the violation of the act would be imprisonment in the state prison not less than one year nor more than eight years, disfranchisement for any determinate period, and the revocation of the license of any physician, pharmacist, druggist, veterinarian or dentist who violates the law.

MAY ASK EXTREME PENALTY

State Says Evidence in Crumley Murder Case Will Convict.

Covington, Ind., Jan. 14.—The trial of Gilbert Crumley, charged with first degree murder for the killing of his wife, is in progress in the Fountain circuit court. The murder occurred in the Crumley home on the night of Oct. 3. The murdered woman was found the next morning, her body mutilated and her skull crushed with an ax. Her husband's suspicious actions caused his arrest, and the grand jury returned an indictment against him. The state says it has evidence that will convict Crumley.

The close examination of talesmen indicates that nothing short of the extreme penalty will be demanded.

Trivial Injury Causes Death.

Brookston, Ind., Jan. 14.—An apparently trivial wound caused the death of Dr. C. T. Brockway, who was cranking his automobile a week ago, when he bruised a finger. He paid little attention to the wound and blood poison developed. He had practiced twenty-five years and was surgeon for the Monon railroad at Brookston.

He Left a Note.

Huntington, Ind., Jan. 14.—Police here are searching along the Little river, where they think they may find the body of Joe Garsey, whose home was near Peru. A note was found saying that he had been disappointed in love and that his body would be found in the river. He had been working at the Erie shops here.

Going to Arizona.

Indianapolis, Jan. 14.—Former Governor and Mrs. Marshall are to leave Indianapolis tonight for Scottsdale, Ariz., where they will spend the time before Mr. Marshall is inaugurated as vice president of the United States, visiting Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Kimsey, Mrs. Marshall's parents.

Body Crushed to Pulp.

Richmond, Ind., Jan. 14.—Antonio Millino, an Italian, was killed at the plant of the Reliance foundry, when his clothing caught on a shaft revolving several hundred times a minute. Millino's body was crushed to a pulp.

Railway Watchman Killed.

South Bend, Ind., Jan. 14.—R. Bair, aged seventy, a watchman on the L. S. & M. S. railroad, was instantly killed when hit by a passenger train.

FURTHER EVIDENCE AGAINST FIREBUGS

New York Arson Trust Being Rounded Up.

New York, Jan. 14.—The investigation recently started regarding the "arson trust"—an association of crooked fire insurance brokers, incendiaries and dishonest apartment renters which is said by Fire Commissioner Johnson and Fire Marshal Prial to have robbed insurance companies of hundreds of thousands of dollars in recent years—has progressed so far before the extraordinary grand jury that the arrest of an insurance broker and promoter is planned for today.

Samuel Gold, whose confessions have enabled the authorities to pry deeply into the operations of the incendiaries, was the main witness before the grand jury. Gold supplemented and amplified his previous confessions with a story that implicated an insurance agent and broker well known in the trade. Gold's testimony was highly sensational. He said that the broker and agent in question had been active for years in persuading flat dwellers to deal with professional incendiaries for the purpose of fleeing insurance companies.

Willis O. Robb, manager of the New York Fire Insurance exchange, still contends that Commissioner Johnson is something less than accurate in his statement about incendiaries.

The Death List Increased.

Terre Haute, Ind., Jan. 14.—The death of Charles Boyd of Staunton, Ind., at St. Anthony's hospital increased the toll of the collision between two Vandalia trains at the Union depot, Wednesday, to four. Boyd was crushed when the rear coach telescoped the baggage car.

Old Man Sent to Prison.

Crawfordsville, Ind., Jan. 14.—Joseph Brown, aged sixty, has been sentenced to the Michigan City prison to serve an indeterminate sentence of two to twenty-one years on his plea of guilty to the charge of contributing to the delinquency of young girls.

Give your five toes room for five toes, House them in a pair of shoes stamped Cox. Then you will understand why so many people buy our shoes instead of others. It is not the price alone that makes the better shoe, but better fit, better looks, better service, with the better price. You can buy shoes anywhere, but Cox's shoes can be bought only at Cox's shoe store. It's even a better shoe than you are now wearing even if it is a shoe you are satisfied with. Try a pair of them.

AUNT'S DEATH

Mrs. J. L. Cowing Receives Telegram

Announcing Demise of Mrs. Jerusha Stewart at Humboldt, Ill.

BEEN SICK FOR A LONG TIME

Deceased Next to Last of Family of Nine—Sister of Late William Beale.

Mrs. J. L. Cowing received a telegram this morning announcing the death of her aunt, Mrs. Jerusha Stewart, at her home in Humboldt, Illinois last night. Mrs. Stewart was the widow of the late Dr. Hugh Stewart and was about seventy years old.

Mrs. Stewart has been in poor health for several years and her death was not unexpected. She has been away from Rushville for the last thirty or forty years, having moved from here to Humboldt shortly after her marriage to Dr. Stewart.

Mrs. Stewart is the next to the last one of the Beale family of nine children. It is a significant fact that she was the youngest of the family, and that the only surviving member, Sam Beale of Elwood was the oldest one of the children.

Mrs. Stewart was a sister of the late William Beale and leaves many nieces and nephews here. She also was an aunt of Jesse Stone, the retiring county auditor, whose mother was a sister of Mrs. Stewart's and Mr. Beale's.

Mrs. Stewart has spent all of her life in Humboldt since her marriage to Dr. Stewart. Two children were born to Dr. and Mrs. Stewart, one of whom, Samuel Stewart, took up his father's drug business and carried it on in Humboldt at the parent's death. He also cared for his aged mother. The other son's name is Granville, also of Humboldt. The funeral and burial will take place in Humboldt.

INFANT DEAD.

The two-months-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Luther Bennett, died yesterday at their home southeast of the city. Death was caused from pneumonia. The funeral services were conducted this afternoon.

TO HAVE GOITER REMOVED

Mrs. Ed Noah of Clarksburg May Lose Voice as Result.

Mrs. Ed Noah of Clarksburg, accompanied by her husband and daughter, Mrs. Albert Clark, of Rushville, left Monday for Louisville, says the Greensburg Review. Mrs. Noah has been troubled for some time with an ingrowing goiter, which has reached such size that it interferes greatly with her breathing. She went to Louisville with the expectation of having an operation performed. This can be done successfully, but she will lose her voice, and for this reason has postponed the ordeal as long as possible.

Amusements

The Palace will show a Rex drama, "In Honor Bound" for the first picture tonight. The other is a western picture "White Dove's Sacrifice."

The Erie will show the usual two pictures tonight. "A Temperamental Husband" is the title of a Keystone comedy. "Father" is the subject of a Reliance drama.

The Portola will have the usual vaudeville offering tonight, featuring Harry and May Howard in a German character sketch. Three reels of pictures will also be shown. "Pathe Weekly No. 44" is the first. A Lubin drama, "Juan and Juanita," and a Kalem, "The Pony Express Girl," conclude the program.

The Princess will show an Edison railroad drama, "A Romance of the Rails," for the first picture tonight.
